Joseph V Roberts      The Technological Thing
Versus The Good Human Life

What is the most powerful ideological current operating in today's world? It is not capitalism, not Communism, says the author of this book. It is Totalitarian Technologism. Mankind is now practically at the mercy of this current, and where is it leading him? To the earthly paradise he hopes for? Or to a hell on Earth? This book will make you think twice about these questions. Cloth 211 pages $5.95

Harvey Cardwell      Earth Science At Crisis

This book offers a fascinating revision of modern physical theory, based on a convincing reinterpretation of the fundamental data on which relativity theory was built. The need for this reinterpretation, says the author, is now confirmed by the fact and behavior of the UFOs in our skies. And unless this new physics, long overdue, is pursued and worked out by our scientists, we will never achieve the technological triumphs that our interplanetary visitors prove to be possible.

40 witnesses report spotting eerie UFO speeding in the sky

A GROUP of 40 people saw and felt the effects of an Unidentified Flying Object just outside a hotel where international experts were holding the 1979 World UFO Congress, according to witnesses.

A radio journalist, Jairo Daza, says he actually made photographs of the fast-moving, brightly-lit disc-like object.

Daza, 25, a reporter for Radio Opinion Nacional in Bogota, Colombia, where the congress was conducted, said:

"I'd left the UFO Congress at about 7:30 in the evening and was going to drive back to my radio station to report on it.

"When I reached the parking lot of the hotel, I suddenly saw about 40 people looking up. One boy was screaming: 'UFOs! UFOs!'

"Others also began screaming.

A woman to my left, a housewife named Julia Rodriguez fainted dead away.

"Even before I looked up, I felt a tremendous weight, a pressure on my head. But I forced my head up. And I saw a cluster of bright lights speeding through the sky.

"They appeared to be going fast, and at a low altitude."

Thinking quickly, Daza grabbed a camera slung over a tourist's shoulder, aimed it skyward and got off two fast shots.

Afterward, most of the witnesses reported attacks of nausea. "I felt ill for four days and vomited twice," Daza said.

Nausea and other sickness are frequently evidence that a UFO is in the area, according to Dr. Armando Marti, a Colombian researcher into electromagnetic effects on living organisms.

Dr. Marti said there was a close sighting over the district of Bogota last Dec. 1.

"People inside apartment buildings felt the same symptoms of disturbance and headaches," he said. "They hid in their bathrooms. Everyone felt their skins prickling."

Biochemist Julian Solano Holguin said he saw a UFO in the same area near Bogota one night and collected evidence of its presence. "It landed about a mile away," he said. "I was frightened to go near. At dawn, I went where

I had seen it land and found a semicircle some 16 ft. across, with the grass all yellow as if burned. "I saw something shiny on the grass, and though I was afraid it might be radioactive, I scraped it with a stick."

Holguin displays a small glass tube containing a few metallic specks which join and separate like liquid but sparkle like crystals.

Dr. Allen Hynek, America's leading UFO investigator, was addressing the UFO conference at the moment of the reported sighting outside the hotel.

Dr. Hynek, chairman of the astronomy department at Northwestern University and former NASA consultant, said he will study reporter Daza's photographs and have a complete investigation of the sighting made.

"I am so happy someone is finally studying UFOs. Now I can tell of my experience—

an encounter in 1967
with UFO occupants..."

In 1975, Betty Andreasson wrote to Dr. J. Allen Hynek, Director of the Center for UFO Studies, to report an extraordinary Close Encounter of the Third Kind. An exhaustive investigation followed, involving stress analysis tests, psychiatric examinations, character checks, analysis of weather reports, and the supporting testimony of Mrs. Andreasson's eldest daughter, Becky. The conclusion of the investigators' 528-page report: Mrs. Andreasson—and her daughter—were telling the truth.

Now Betty Andreasson has given her full cooperation to Raymond Fowler (a member of the original investigative team) to chronicle the story of that 12-month investigation and the astonishing narrative it brought to light. On the night of January 25, 1967, the Andreasson home was plunged into darkness, and a pulsating glow enveloped the backyard. Later, under hypnotic regression, Mrs. Andreasson recalled how several 3-foot humanoid creatures entered the house, took her aboard their craft, and subjected her to a physical examination—then left her with a mysterious blue book, containing information that she would recall "when the time is right."

But the events of that harrowing night were by no means the end of the story. The true implications of Betty Andreasson's abduction became clear only when a new series of bizarre events erupted during the course of the investigation itself!

The Andreasson Affair is one of the best-documented cases of its kind to date—and the only one to be fully illustrated. An amateur artist of considerable ability, Mrs. Andreasson drew detailed sketches of the aliens and their craft's interior, many of which are reproduced in this book.

The Philadelphia Experiment

Project Invisibility

by William L. Moore in consultation with
Charles Berlitz

October, 1943. The U.S.S. Eldridge, a destroyer escort, is berthed at the Philadelphia

Navy Yard. Suddenly the ship vanishes into a green fog—only the outline of the vessel remains faintly visible in the water. Within seconds the Eldridge appears in Norfolk, Virginia, and then reappears in Philadelphia.

Did the Navy by chance or design discover how to render matter invisible, and has it endeavored ever since to keep the incident a secret?

For thirty-six years the rumors have persisted, despite official denials about the reality of the "Philadelphia Experiment," but only fragments of the story have come to light. Now after extensive research and considerable detective work William Moore, in consultation with Charles Berlitz, has put the pieces of the puzzle together to provide startling insights into this bizarre incident and its consequences.

In his introduction Charles Berlitz applauds Moore for "overcoming official inertia, camouflage, and cover-up" in his research and for making the first "concrete case for the actuality" of the Philadelphia Experiment.

This fascinating investigation involves searches for "misplaced" government files and lost documents, hidden identities, and missing persons. Connections are established between the experiment and cryptic letters, instances of insanity and suicide, UFO sightings, alien visits, and the continuing events in the Bermuda Triangle.

In addition, testimony from Eldridge crew members who suffered unforeseen adverse effects of the experiment, from scientists working on Navy projects at the time, and from security guards working at classified sites who saw things they were not meant to see, points to that one day in 1943 when something happened...

William L. Moore is an English and French teacher in the Minnesota school system, a playwright, author, and an investigator of the unexplained. His collaboration with Charles Berlitz on The Philadelphia Experiment has taken him on investigations throughout the United States during the past four years. Moore lives in Minnesota with his wife and three children. His initial interest in the Philadelphia Experiment stems from a meeting with Charles Berlitz while Berlitz was on a lecture tour.

Charles Berlitz, the author of The Bermuda Triangle, is a renowned linguist, lecturer, and underwater explorer. In addition to The Bermuda Triangle, which has sold over 10 million copies in twenty-three languages, Berlitz has written other best sellers on archaeology, languages, Atlantis, and underwater exploration, including The Mystery of Atlantis, published by Grosset & Dunlap. He lives in Florida, from where he is continuing his research on the Bermuda Triangle.

The CIA's UFO Watch

Now it can be told. The Central Intelligence Agency, like everybody else, has been scanning the skies for unidentified flying objects since 1949. That fact emerges from documents obtained under a freedom of information suit by Ground Saucer Watch, an Arizona-based organization of scientists and engineers seeking to "prove or disprove" the existence of UFOs.

The CIA has said often that it closed its books on UFOs during 1952. The documents clearly demonstrate otherwise.

The 1,000-page batch of papers implies that the CIA accepts the real existence of UFOs. A 1952 document says the sightings could mask Russian air attacks or psychological warfare, and recommends a public information policy "that will minimize concern and possible panic." A 1975 document warns against acknowledging any pattern or link in the sightings. "Response should be direct, forthright and emphasize that the action taken was in response to an isolated or specific incident."

In his classic study in the mid-1950s of "flying saucers," the Swiss psychologist Carl Gustav Jung made the point that whether or not UFOs exist, the fact that large numbers of people think they see them says much about the mythologizing tendency of modern man. The old myths fade and are forgotten, Jung says, but man forever invents new ones. In our time "little green men" stepping out of flying discs, occasionally to kidnap an earthling and interrogate him, give us something to believe in. And where belief exists, evidence will accumulate.

We are pleased that the CIA has its eyes peeled, displeased that it has assumed, in typical CIA fashion, that the information about sightings it has gathered is not for public consumption. The CIA has no call to be supercilious about such evidence as it collects.

On the basis of the documents it has obtained, Ground Saucer Watch is now convinced that UFOs are real. We reserve judgment, but we urge the CIA to be less spooky on the subject in the future.

Local encounter draws attention of UFO experts

ARTHUR GOLDEN
Miami News Reporter

A dramatic increase in reported UFO activities has swamped the nation's major center for extraterrestrial investigations, which wants to question a Hialeah man who claims he was abducted by a UFO.

"We absolutely have to talk to Filiberto Cardenas," declared Estelle Postol, administrator of the Center for UFO Studies in Evanston, Ill.

Postol said "there could be a link" between the Cardenas case and UFOs spotted in recent weeks over widely separated parts of the world.

Cardenas, 46, of 60 E. 38th St., says he was snatched Wednesday night by a dazzling, buzzing "strange force" which took him on a 12-mile ride over Dade. Three witnesses insist he is telling the truth.

Postol said the center is now receiving up to 450 reports a month of worldwide UFO activity, a substantial increase over previous years. Some 90 per cent can be explained as genuinely natural or man-made phenomena, she said.

But since Dec. 22, there have occurred these baffling events:

- ✓ A glowing object reported by a pilot to be shadowing his aircraft on its approach to Christchurch Airport in New Zealand.

- ✓ A fleet of five brilliantly illuminated flying saucers reported whipping over Caracas, Venezuela, during a New Year's Eve blackout.

- ✓ Six "beings" a former nurse and her son said they encountered on a lonely country road in Johannesburg, South Africa. The woman said that when she became excited and shouted, the creatures dashed into a brightly colored craft with pink lights and flew away.

- ✓ Three mysterious objects, sparkling like diamonds and gyrating like electrocardiograms, reported flashing over Jerusalem's Mount of Olives.

- ✓ A large, round, glowing object seen hovering 1,500 feet above Winter Haven Thursday, and then said to have shot straight up and zoomed away.

Postol said investigators at the privately financed center want to administer a lie detector test to Cardenas and to have him undergo psychological and voice analyses and hypnotic regression.

"I would certainly not dismiss his experience out of hand," she said.

But Cardenas said yesterday that while he had nothing against such tests, he would have to consult with friends before agreeing to take them.

Cardenas was interviewed in his bedroom. He wore a bathrobe and huddled under the blankets on his bed.

Filiberto Cardenas is comforted by wife Iris at their Hialeah home

The shades were drawn because Cardenas complained that his eyes hurt ever since the UFO incident. And Cardenas said his face, chest and shoulders throbbed with burns he suffered in the adventure.

"I did not want publicity," he rasped in a hoarse voice. "But my wife Iris convinced me that my story would benefit the entire nation and all mankind."

Cardenas said the bizarre episode unfolded around 6 p.m. Wednesday, when he and three members of the Marti family — Fernando, 46, his wife Elizabeth, 36, and daughter Mirta, 13, of 8632 NW 35th Ct. — were returning from an unsuccessful effort to buy a pig for Sunday night supper.

Cardenas said his 1970 Chevy developed electrical problems and stalled on Okeechobee Road near Florida's Turnpike Extension. He and Marti got out of the car and opened the hood, Cardenas said.

"At that very moment, a red-violet light cut through the twilight. And there was an intense noise, like the buzzing of thousands of bees," Cardenas recalled.

"I tried to move but I was paralyzed, unable to do anything. I could hear the screams of the women in the car. I looked down and saw that I was suspended three feet from the ground.

"The next thing I remember is coming to, on my hands and knees, on the Tamiami Trail, near 137th Avenue. It was two hours later — and 12 miles away from where the car had stalled."

A passing motorist saw Cardenas and notified police, who picked him up. Police said Cardenas told them he had no idea what had happened.

Meanwhile, Marti said, the car suddenly started after Cardenas' disappearance. The Martis rushed to Hialeah where they reported the incident to police, who listed it as a missing person.

"I would find it hard to believe, if I read about it in a newspaper," admitted Marti. "But I was there with my wife and daughter. We were all terrified by the light and the noise. When it ended, Filiberto had vanished."

The Cuban-born Cardenas owns a discount store where he sells articles used in the Afro-Cuban cult of spirits and spells known as Santeria. A life-size statue of Saint Barbara, clutching a sword, dominates his living room.

Cardenas describes himself as an intensely religious person, a teetotaler with no use for fantasy. He said, "Before this happened, I scoffed at UFOs. Now I know differently." The Miami News - 1-6-1979

SECRET DOORS OF THE EARTH

Jacques Bergier

In this, his latest and boldest work, Jacques Bergier invites readers to look at the world in an entirely new way. For the universe, he says, is "stranger than anything we can ever imagine it to be." It is so strange that:

Extraterrestrials travel to and from places that are not to be found on any map . . .

Secret societies whose members communicate via mental telepathy have existed throughout history; yet we have no means by which to detect them . . .

Invisible continents have appeared periodically on our planet, corresponding to events not otherwise explainable . . .

Immortals are living in our midst, as are others who possess most exceptional gifts . . .

Certain surfaces of the earth are actually multidimensional spatial folds . . . and there exist doors that open onto domains belonging to sacred geography . . .

Bergier is the first to admit that these hypotheses have hardly gained scientific currency. Indeed, he says, scientists are usually the first to oppose any notion that upsets their acquired "rational" laws. But Bergier chooses these hypotheses rather than others precisely because they "stimulate the spirit and make us dream."

Perhaps in a decade or so these ideas will seem timid. Today, however, they are compelling enough to grip the imagination and to lead us beyond that reality we now take for granted. Jacques Bergier extends a visa that allows the reader access to little-known dimensions of this planet earth.

Jacques Bergier, a French scientist and Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts, is the author of, among other books, Extraterrestrial Visitations from Prehistoric Times to the Present and is the editor/contributor of Extraterrestrial Intervention: The Evidence.

People Are Saying . . .

It seemed like a scene out of "Guerre Stellari", as the film "Star Wars" was called in Rome, Italy, when Highway policeman Tommaso Davi, recently found himself giving chase in his patrol car, to a spherical, shining unidentified flying object said to have temporarily knocked out electricity at various points along the Adriatic coastal road.

But the incident was real. Furthermore, it was only one of a rash of recent sightings throughout the Italian peninsula that have led many people in Rome to believe events in Italy are being closely followed by creatures from out of space.

Over the past two months, the Italian skies appear to have been invaded by swarms of "OVNIs" or "Oggetti Volanti non Identificali" the Italian version of UFO's. Sightings which appear to have been concentrated in an area now dubbed the "Adratle triangle" between Pescara and Ancona along Italy's eastern coast, have made as far south as Palermo and as far north as Trieste and Milan.

They have led to traffic jams in Naples, caused fear among fisherman who have seen their ships instruments disturbed and frightened the residents of Rome. Furthermore, the sightings have been made and reported by a growing number of citizens above all possible suspicion, like soldiers, NATO officers and pilots.

For example, the first sighting in Rome recently — a luminous, green object hovering in the early morning skies — was made by officers on duty at police headquarters whose original skepticism had disappeared after insistent callers told them to "go and look for yourselves."

In Palermo, a few days before, a bank teller, Nino Raffagnino, hastily photographs a UFO he thought he spotted in the Sicilian sky and came up with pictures of a shining disk with a donut-like hole in the middle. A night patrol of carabinieri or military police in Calabria also saw an unusual "streak of light in the sky," as did soldiers on guard duty at Brindisi on the Adriatic.

The Unidentified Flying Objects sighted here have been described by witnesses as green, red or white lights or, alternatively, as spherical or elongated silver or orange metallic objects. Whether real or imagined, the flurry of sightings has so charged the atmosphere.

Others, described as trapezoidal or triangular in form, have been seen hovering ahead, or in two bizarre incidents in different cities, perched on the giant antenna of the Italian state radio and television network.

Less publicized have been what a spokesman for the Clypeus group in Turin has referred to as close encounters of the second kind. According to the group, so far this year there have been nine spacecraft landings in Italy with crew members from outer space repeatedly described by eyewitnesses as "humanoid" in appearance.

THE UFO CONNECTIONS OF JESUS CHRIST

by Kazmer Ujvarosy

Were angels in fact extraterrestrial civilizing astronauts, messengers sent to educate the populations of backward planets to the principles and origins of man and the universe?

Author Kazmer Ujvarosy has researched many ancient texts, such as the Apocryphal or concealed writings of Christianity, to discover that they are in agreement in their singular recognition of space visitors' activity among them, coming in vehicles described by the ancients as "fiery chariots," "clouds of light," something referred to as an "aerial and excellent car," which today we would call spaceships or UFOs.

A part of this civilizing message was that our planet is actually a living, immense "tree," springing from the eternal seed of Cosmic Man—the seed of all life.

Was Jesus the result of one of these astronauts artificially inseminating Mary? Find the enlightening answer to this and many other such volatile questions in The UFO Connections of Jesus Christ, a book that will open up an entirely new perspective before its readers.
